Dear Sir:

I have been listening to all this talk and arguments concerning Microsoft. About how all these other companies are jealous of Microsoft and Bill Gates. Here are a few things to remember before passing judgement on this case.

- * It was Bill Gates who said, "I will put a computer in every household." All the computer manufacturers laughed at him.
- * It was Bill Gates who took the Federal Governments lack of foresight on the internet, and turned it into a trillion dollar business for the world.
- * It was Bill Gates who came up with operating systems that a novice computer person could work.

MacIntosh and Apple did nothing but try to get the business community to buy systems that were very difficult to work, extremely slow, very inefficient, and extremely expensive. But now they are angry with Microsoft because Bill Gates did what he set out to do, and every year he is constantly coming up with better ideas for the working class people. Just remember that its the working class people that pay for most everything in this country. Now I grant you that Bill Gates is not being nominated for Sainthood, but think about it, he has accomplished the american dream, and those who couldn't make their dreams come true, are trying to steal his. In my opinion, which may or may not be relevant, this anti-trust suit is nothing more than another way to waste tax dollars, and the courts time. Both of which could be used more usefully.
